Description

All scrobbles in the scrobble.log should be sent in a single request.
If the log contains more than 50 tracks, send them 50 at a time.

This also implies further interpreting the results received from last.fm. See http://www.last.fm/api/show/track.scrobble. Tracks ignored because the daily scrobble limit was exceeded (ignoredMessage code="5") should be kept and retried later.

last.fm does not allow scrobbling tracks with a timestamp older than 2 weeks. See:

iPod Scrobbling FAQ - How long can I wait to scrobble tracks from my iPod?

Apparently, on the iPod, they seem to scrobble all plays of the same track with the same timestamp, which although not ideal, might help mitigate that 2-week issue.

I started a quick implementation to allow us not to lose old tracks. It's not what I'd call an ideal solution, but it may work.
What this implementation does is retry rejected, old scrobbles, with a timestamp refreshed to "now".

This might get track plays in a different order they were played, but I prefer having that than to lose them.

The previous comment is related with this issue (50 tracks in a row might quite well contain older-than-2-weeks-tracks).
However, it would fit better on #263, which is more dependent on old scrobbles working than this one.

Closing old scrobbler "TODO" items since Luís has not been actively working on the plugin for a while now.
