Description

There is already a great playlist manager but it is opened in another window and doesn't hide with the main interface. I would like it to be embedded in the left side of the interface so I can easily scroll all my playlist. The playlist bar fills with a couple of playlists, very inefficient with a large music collection.

This is my actual playlist collections, I used short names to make them all fit on the bar:

It would be great to have something like this, but with the playlist manager embedded in the main interface and an option to hide the playlist bar:

The playlist manager can be docked just like any other plugin. Right-click at the top of the window (not the title bar but just below it) where it says "Playlist Manager", and select "Dock at Left".
