Description

Hi, I like Audacious but one major problem that I have is that I use it for multiple playlists. Music, audiobooks, etc. and for long things like audiobooks there's no way to mark the last place I was as I listen to another playlist. This is a flaw with most audio players and I think this would put Audacious above the rest if it added bookmarks, or even just kept the play status saved per playlist. I've noticed that the "Jump to Time" will actually tell you where you are in the audio-stream when paused (I use an external file at the moment to keep track of where I am), so it shouldn't be hard to implement since all that's needed is a config file and menu for bookmarks.

Isn't this the same thing as #797?

- Status changed from New to Closed
- Tracker changed from Feature to Support

This has been implemented for years. Closing.
