

Audacious - OLD, PLEASE USE GITHUB DISCUSSIONS/ISSUES - Support #881

.deb-file or PPA with 3.10.1 for Ubuntu 18.04?

March 15, 2019 13:38 - aur as

Status:	Closed	Start date:	March 15, 2019
Priority:	Minor	Due date:
Assignee:		% Done:	0%
Category:		Estimated time:	0.00 hour
Target version:
Affects version:	3.10.1
Description I am using Ubuntu 18.04, and I see there is a webupd8 PPA with the latest version 3.10.1, but the webupd8 PPA updates a lot of other programs, not only Audacious. I like to keep check on things on my computer, so it would be really great if the team behind Audacious created a .deb-file for easy Ubuntu and Debian installation, is this possible? Alternatively you could offer a dedicated PPA for the latest Audacious for Linux.

History

#1 - March 16, 2019 17:43 - John Lindgren

- Tracker changed from Feature to Support

#2 - March 16, 2019 17:46 - John Lindgren

You can use a PPA without installing/updating all the other packages from it. Enable the PPA, install Audacious, and then disable it again.

#3 - March 16, 2019 19:37 - aur as

Thanks John, that worked perfectly!

Perhaps the link from the Download page (<https://audacious-media-player.org/download>) could be updated to link to <https://launchpad.net/~nilarimogard/+archive/ubuntu/webupd8?>

I used these commands to install Audacious version 3.10:

```
sudo add-apt-repository ppa:nilarimogard/webupd8
sudo apt-get update
sudo apt-get install audacious
sudo add-apt-repository --remove ppa:nilarimogard/webupd8
sudo apt-get update
```

#4 - March 16, 2019 19:48 - John Lindgren

- Target version deleted (3.10.1)

- Status changed from New to Closed

Sure, I updated the PPA link to point directly to Launchpad rather than the blog search page.

#5 - March 16, 2019 20:06 - aur as

Thanks for updating the link, I think that's more useful. And thanks a lot for maintaining Audacious, it's the best music player for Ubuntu.